A WOMAN'S THOUGHTS ON BONNETS .-A lady correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes from New York;

The bonnet is the frame to the picture A pretty face wants the setting to add luster to its leveliness. A homely one hopes, by a happy combination of tints, to soften its ugliness, or to suggest a beauty which it does not possess. The present bonnets look like coal scuttles, and will hardly succeed in making any one handsome. In their anxiety to grow large all of a sudden, they have burst out behind as well as before. They may be decidedly stylish, but they are not graceful. A high-pointed shelf protrading over the forehead, and a bag of lace hanging out of the crown, large enough for a work pocket, it is anything but artistic. Still it is refreshing to see heads crowned with slowers instead of feathers. To me there was always an incongruity in the thought of robbing poor estriches and smaller birds of their party talk in order to trick.

Boss & Burrell's Stage leaves daily for Flint and Holly, at 7½ A. M., and 2 P. M., connecting with D. & M. R. W. to Detroit. birds of their pretty tails in order to trick out feminine heads. But flowers are a tiplied daughters. The most graceful spring hat worn is the simple straw void of the silk of lace crown-trimmed with budding green, or violet tints, and clusters of spring flowers.

Loss or "THIRDLY."-A Scotch clergyman had a enerom of writing the heads of his discourse on small slips of paper, which he placed on the Bible before him, to be used in succession. One day, when he was explaining the second head, he got a little warm in the harness, and came down with such a thump upon the Bible with his hand, that the ensuing slip fell over the edge of the pulpit, though unperceived by himself. On reaching the end of the second head, he looked down for the third slip; but, alss! it was not to East Saginaw. for the third slip; but, alas! it was not to be found. 'Thirdly,' he cried, looking around him with great anxiety. Aftera Attorney, Counsellor and Solicitor, Agent for buying little pause, 'Thirdly,' again he exclaimed, but still no Thirdly appeared. -"Thirdly, I say, my brethern," pursued the bewildered clergyman; but not another word could be utter. THE DUTY OF A MOTHER. - By the quiet fire-side of home, the true mother in the igan, Office, midst of her children, is sowing as in the vases of earth the seeds of plants that shall sometime give to heaven the fragrance of their blossoms, and whose fruit shall be as a rosary of angelic deeds, the noblest offering that she can make through of her children to her Maker. Every word that she utters goes from heart to heart with a power of which she little! dreams. Philosophers tell us in their speculations that we cannot lift a finger without moving the distant spheres. -Solemn is the thought, but not more solemn to the Christian mother, than the Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, thought that every word that falls from her hips, every expression of her countenance, even in the sheltered walk and retirement of home, may leave an indelible impression upon the young souls around her, and form as it were the underlying strata of that education which peoples
